Rules

- The exam is open book and open note.
- You may use a calculator or other computational aids. (MIT students are not allowed such devices, and the exam is designed to be done without them.)
- All work presented on the exam must be your own.
- You may not post the content of this exam in any public or private format.
- You may not assist other learners in solving the exam.

Format

- You will be asked to agree to the terms of our Honor Code before starting the exam.
- You will have 48 hours to complete the exam once you begin.
- The exam itself will take no more than 3 hours, but it must be complete within the 48 hour window.
- Each problem has infinitely many attempts.
- You will not receive feedback on whether or not your submission is correct. (There is no green check or red X.)
- The Progress page display graph will be turned off during the exam.
- There are no solutions provided for the exam.

This practice exam is similar in format to the exam you will take. However

1. This practice exam is untimed.
2. There are solutions available as soon as you have attempted a problem so that you may learn from your answers and compare your answer to ours.
3. You immediately receive a green check or red x indicating if your submitted answer is correct or not.
4. There is no honor code for the practice exam, you are free to discuss in detail on the discussion forum. Please tag posts with a Spoiler Alert if you give away parts of an answer so that students know not to view until after they have attempted the problem themselves.
