

No, since less fishing will also imply more predators surviving and they will need still more prey to eat.