Microsoft: DAT203x Data Science and Machine Learning Essentials

OVERVIEW OF CLUSTERING

In a previous chapter, you learned that clustering is an unsupervised learning technique that groups unlabelled data entities together based on similarity of feature (x) values.

This chapter explores how clustering works, and describes two common clustering algorithms.

© All Rights Reserved

POWERED BY OPENedX